Colleges are talking about AP Capstone...

"The AP Capstone program will help students to develop critical thinking skills that allow them to think independently, to analyze issues from different perspectives, to communicate clearly, and to conduct independent research. These are exactly the types of skills that they will be expected to utilize in college and the AP Capstone program will give them a terrific head start."

Zina L. Evans, University of Florida

President for Enrollment Management and Associate Provost

"The ability to guide the student toward understanding where a research method is valid, needs to be explicitly taught."

Ellen Woods, Stanford University,

Provost for Undergraduate Education and Director of Thinking Matters

"[Through this program] you get students turned on to higher education in a way they are not currently and they enter university with a different kind of attitude."

Susan Roth, Duke University,

Vice Provost for Interdisciplinary Studies
